DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

Inventions 1-84,672,000. Claims 9-11, drawn to method of suppressing GH and IGH-II levels, and treating a cancer patient using a 29-amino acids residue peptide or peptide analogs classified in class 514, subclass 2 and other classes and subclasses depending on the compositions of residues at R¹ through R²⁹.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Claims 9-11 are generic claims, and as such have been combined with each of the individual peptides or peptide analogs. Note the attached "Section 3.4 Counting, Permutations, and Combinations" for counting rules.

Inventions 1-84,672,000 are structurally different products with different molecular formulas. The different peptides are seen as patentably distinct, because even slight modifications in peptide structure can have significant and unpredictable effects on biological activity. Wang, J. et al. 2000 J. Biol. Chem. 275 (1): 507-513 provide evidence that even a single amino acid change alter the biological activity of a polypeptide in an unpredictable way (see Fig. 3, 4, and 5 and Table 1).

Inventions 1-84,672,000 contain claims generic to a plurality of disclosed patentably distinct species at R¹(listed as X), and at R⁶ and R¹⁰ positions if Phe are selected (listed as Y). The species are patentably distinct because they are different in chemical structure. Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species (listed in claim 63), even though this requirement is traversed.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other invention.

The inventions are independent and distinct for the reasons given above. They have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification and require independent searches. The search required for each of the above inventions is not coextensive with regard to the literature and the sequence searches. Further, a reference which would anticipate the invention of any one group would not necessarily anticipate or make obvious the any of the other groups. For these reasons, restriction for examination purposes is proper.
